Taking the high road

HIGHWAYS consulting engineers Sanderson Associates have won a top prize in the 2010 Yorkshire and Humber Construction Best Practice Awards.

The Grange Moor-based business won the SME Award and was highly commended in the categories for Leadership and People Development and the Achiever's Award.

Judges praised the firm as "a classic example of a company who identified a niche market at the right time and have capitalised and grown as a result of the new work. They have taken the consultancy world by storm, notching up a significant number of scalps."

The company, led by managing director Alison France, was rewarded for its investment in its staff and its development during extremely challenging economic conditions.

The winners of the awards were announced at the glittering ceremony, hosted by impressionist Chris Barrie, at Aspire in central Leeds.

During its 23-year history, Sanderson Associates has undertaken more than 5,900 schemes.
